[REDACTED] it was learned from a Soviet officer that all the troop units in the Dallgow-Doeberitz area were under the command of a general who was billeted in the southernmost house of a complex of buildings about 125 meters southwest of the southwestern corner of the athletic field. The units concerned were quartered in Altes Lager, the Loewen Kaserne, the Adler Kaserne, the Flak Kaserne, at Hasenhaidenberg and Olympisches Dorf. Another general who was subordinate to the general first mentioned also lived in Olympisches Dorf.
